A data pipeline validates source documents.
Validation rejects empty files before processing.
Accepted documents proceed to extraction.